My experience at UniTo

Maria Vlassopoulos
Asst. Professor in Language & Communication Pathology, School of Medicine, National & Kapodistrian University of Athens, Greece

My experience at UniTo was very positive and unique. Teaching students from another culture, in a language other than their own, may be seen as a challenge, but the process for me was very rewarding, the students were keen and attentive, interaction within the classroom was at a very high level and I felt that I was able to execute my job to the very best of my abilities.

On a personal basis, I felt very welcomed by all in this warm learning environment. I learnt how to adjust and enrich my lectures with examples which would be relevant to my audience. Furthermore I felt that this was greatly appreciated and that the feelings were mutual. I would greatly recommend this teaching experience to all of my colleagues.

Discover more about my activity
Discover more about National & Kapodistrian University of Athens
Discover more about the “Standing Liaison Committee of Speech and Language Therapists / Logopedists in the European Union”